

JANET BROXON

Bio

Janet Broxon is an illustrator and surface designer based in Maine. After receiving her BFA in illustration from the University of Art in San Francisco, she began working as an in-house fabric designer for a children's clothing company, giving her much practice creating whimsical animals, florals and all-over patterns. Eventually, she branched out on her own as an illustrator with her work appearing on posters, packaging, greeting cards, magazines, book covers and children's books.

She now lives in Brunswick Maine with her husband and twin boys and continues to work out of her home studio. She loved the multi-cultural influence of San Francisco but now finds all the nature and coastline of Maine bring much inspiration also.

She began working for P & B Textiles in 2004 and has since developed 4 collections with them.
