

Pam Weeks

Bio

Pam Weeks has been making, studying, and teaching about quilts and quilt making since the quilt revival of the US Bicentennial in 1976. She is a State Juried member of the League of New Hampshire Craftsmen. Her work has been exhibited in this country and abroad. In recent years she has added quilt research and appraisal to her avocation, and has studied textile identification, printed textile dating, and is an American Quilt Society Certified Appraiser of Quilted Textiles.

She is also the Executive Director of ABC Quilts, an international not-for-profit organization that makes quilts for at-risk babies and children. ABCQ teaches kids to quilt, combining community service and AIDS and drug abuse prevention awareness.

Pam also served as vice president of the NH Quilt Documentation Project, and is secretary for the Durham, NH Historical Association, and a member of the Durham Public Library Board of Trustees. She lives in a little green house with her son, Ben, and chocolate Labrador Retriever, Miss Coco. Neither of them is allowed near her quilt collection.
